MAINSTREAMING BIODIVERSITY FOR WELL-BEING

“Mainstreaming of the conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity for well-being in sectoral and inter-sectoral plans, programs and policies”

Implies that:

Conservation and sustainable use of biodiversity is integral to the functioning of productive sectors, aiming to reduce, prevent and mitigate the negative impacts, in order for ecosystems to be healthy, resilient and to ensure the provision of essential services for human well-being.

With emphasis in 4 sectors:

Agriculture

Fisheries

Forestry

Tourism

MAINSTREAMING BIODIVERSITY FOR WELL-BEING

To achieve this, political will and coordination with: indigenous peoples and local communities, academia, civil society, national and subnational governments, is fundamental.

Cancun Declaration

Notification CBD
No. 2016-053

Dear Madam/Sir,

Mexico, as host of the thirteenth Conference of the Parties (COP-13) and concurrent meetings of the Parties to the Cartagena and Nagoya Protocols, in consultation with the Bureau of the Conference of the Parties and the Secretariat, has decided to use the High-level Segment of the meetings to highlight the importance of biodiversity mainstreaming for the achievement of the Aichi Biodiversity Targets and to contribute to the achievement of the Sustainable Development Goals. Further, it is envisaged that the High-level Segment will adopt a declaration on biodiversity mainstreaming.

On the margins of the first meeting of the Subsidiary Body on Implementation (2-6 May 2016, Montreal), representatives of Mexico will be holding informal consultations on the preparation of the declaration with delegates, including through the regional groups. To facilitate these discussions, Mexico
